The attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Murray Burrell, in Cleveland Park, decorated with white flowers, ferns and ivy, formed a charming background for the marriage of Miss Eva Leverich Burrell, to Charles C. Ross, Jr., of Yorkers, N. Y., which took place at noon today.

The Rev. Dr. G. C. F. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, wearing a lovely gown of ivory satin, combined with chintilly lace and ornamented with pearls. Her tulle veil was arranged with a cap of duchess lace and she carried a shower bouquet of Bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Henrietta Burrell, her only attendant, wore a dainty frock of white tulle and tulle, with a girle of yellow centered daisies as its only trimming. She carried white asters. A. N. Lime Combats Tuberculosis
"It is difficult to escape the conviction that lime starvation and lime assimilation are the real issues behind the masks of vulnerability and resistance in tuberculosis," wrote the late Dr. Van Dine, in the N. Y. Medical Record, May 11, 1912. Ordinarily, lime is not easily assimilated, but Eckman's Alternative contains it in such form and combination as to insure assimilation by the average person. This explains its success in many cases of tuberculosis which apparently have yielded to it. Containing no opiates, narcotics or habit forming drugs, it is safe to try. MURIEL OSTRICHE,

Washington Operatic Star Enthusiastic Advocate of the Photoplay.

Another Washington woman who has achieved success on the stage has pronounced an unqualified endorsement of motion pictures based on practical experience in acting for camera. Geraldine Farrar, the grand opera prima donna, has become one of the most widely enthusiastic patrons of the photoplay as well as an advocate of the use of the film by grand opera and dramatic stars. She announces that she considers it a form of expression that is quite equal to grand opera, which only goes to show how extravagant Miss Farrar can be in her statements when she sets her mind to it.

The fact that Geraldine Farrar spent a very important portion of her life in Washington, and is more or less a Washington product is not generally known to the Washington public. As a matter of fact she began her first serious study of music here, and appeared here in concert before she went to Europe to complete her studies. A local music teacher started her on her way to the fame she has acquired, and Miss Farrar has never forgotten it. Her ideas of motion pictures will, therefore, be received by Washingtonians with added interest when these facts are known.

"Although I never had any misgivings as to my success as a photoplayer," said Miss Farrar, "the results obtained were more beautiful than I ever had anticipated in my enthusiasm. Frankly, I am satisfied that the new art of the photoplay stands equal in importance with grand opera or the speaking stage."

"It didn't take me long to learn. Cecil B. DeMille, director general of the Lasky Company, is a man of wide experience on the legitimate stage. He told me precisely what could be done and I was practically without restrictions of any kind. "And that is the difference," continued Miss Farrar, "between acting in grand opera and for the photoplays. I always have considered acting in grand opera to be the greater part of work in that profession—greater than singing. This was the opportunity for which I had long waited to act as I felt, without the limitation of a vocal role. "Carmen" in pictures is full
